

mwah. making work absolutely human is a knowledge base and a community of all the real stuff you need to lead and work with people, today and in the future.

WHY mwah.live?

We start with this philosophy... Work is a fundamental human right.

The right to contribute. The opportunity to use our hands, our minds, our strength, our creativity and sometimes even our hearts, to contribute to the community in which we live. Whether the community be family, local, organisational, national, or even global, our contribution gives us a sense of purpose, of belonging, of being useful.

The opportunity to grow and develop, to learn and meet new perspectives, even to teach others, makes each of us a little more than we were yesterday.

The accountability and responsibility to others – to encourage, to coach, to inspire, to lead, to follow, to impact, to care, or sometimes just to show up and share the load – provides a deep connectivity. We can rely on others and they can rely on us.

The more of us contributing our best, makes for a better team, a better organisation, a better country, a better economy, a better society and ultimately a better world.